Role of the RBM Partnership in the Multisectoral Response

The RBM Partnership to End Malaria established the Multisectoral Working Group to provide guidance in the work of engaging global stakeholders, build consensus, convene and coordinate partners in order to identify, prioritize and implement initiatives to control and eliminate malaria across all sectors.

Set Priorities

- Based on a rapid assessment of countries' extant and potential multisectoral activities to fight malaria

Activate the Partnership

- Identify and empower research and implementation partners to represent and coordinate the broader Partnership for multisectoral initiatives in which leadership has not yet been identified or unified. Serve as an information hub for data and analysis which fall outside the scope of the health sector, to align Partners in their analysis, foster dialogue, and reach mutual consensus for decision making and action.

Act as an Envoy on Behalf of the Partnership

- The Secretariat can follow up on recommendations of the working group and act as the coordinating partner, leveraging its own resources and expertise to build momentum and drive key initiatives.
